Ike Votes on Quick Trip To Gettysburg by 'Copter

By Patricia Wiggins

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 3 (UPI)—President Eisenhower took only an hour and 22 minutes.

Mr. Eisenhower voted for two Pennsylvania judges, three amendments to the state constitution, a referendum on a tax levy to support a library, and 10 offices in Adams County.

Even if he voted a straight Republican ticket otherwise, he had to abstain or cast a ballot for a Democrat for one office—County Surveyor Leroy H. Winebrenner, who was unopposed for reelection.

The President came to Gettysburg by helicopter shortly after laying the cornerstone of the new Central Intelligence Agency headquarters about eight miles from Washington. The entire trip

Mrs. Eisenhower did not accompany the President to Gettysburg. She is still recovering from a cold and remained in Washington at the suggestion of her doctor.

The President and his son, Maj. John Eisenhower, spent about 10 minutes at Firemen's Hall, a concrete block building where dances are held on Friday nights.

Mr. Eisenhower was in the voting booth about two minutes. He told Republican County Chairman H. Earl Pitzer afterward that he had some trouble figuring out the constitutional proposals.

The President expressed hope that the people would "vote as well this year for the Party as they did last year."

He and John, whose family lives at Gettysburg, were greeted outside the building by John's wife, Barbara, and the youngest Eisenhower grandchild, Mary Jane, 4.

Barbara signed in just after the President. Her husband brought along an absentee ballot he filled out before learning he would be able to make the trip.

Mr. Eisenhower made the return trip in an Army helicopter and landed on the White House lawn at 1:17 p. m.

Skies were clear and the temperature was brisk.
